WEATHERING THE STORM: PROSPECTS FOR REFORM OR POLITICAL REALIGNMENT IN SOUTH AFRICA'S NEXT DECADE

A new strategic intelligence briefing by Dr Frans Cronje, Director of the Centre for Risk Analysis – South Africa's leading political, social, and economic risk advisory group.

- What trends will affect the ANC's performance in the local and general elections of 2021 and 2024 respectively?
- Can South Africa stage a post-Covid-19 economic recovery?
- What are the prospects for policy reform in the ANC government?
- Can Cyril Ramaphosa survive in the ANC?
- Can the government solve its corruption problem?
- Will social and economic tensions destabilise South Africa?

These trends and events will shape the future of South Africa. Can you weather the coming storm?

This online briefing is designed to ensure that top corporate decision-making teams are robustly positioned to anticipate short-, medium-, and long-term shifts in the domestic and global strategic environment.

This briefing offers a deep-dive analysis of the key driving forces that are shaping South Africa and the world today and the implications for the investment and business environment. The briefing draws on closely guarded data, analysis, and polling information that is not available from any other source. Attendees stand to gain a unique understanding of the strategic environment they are operating in and are better geared to making sound long-term decisions and thus mitigating the risk of unanticipated downside events.

DR FRANS CRONJE

Frans Cronje was educated at St Johns College and Wits University and holds a PHD in scenario planning from North-West University. He is the CEO of the IRR and directs the Centre for Risk Analysis. The IRR is a public policy think tank established in 1929 to promote human rights in South Africa. The Centre for Risk Analysis was established in 2010 and advises on global and South African political, economic, social, and policy risk.
